MHE92408 – Tranquil Sunset

Last summer in the middle of all the turmoil that life can through your way, I took a little time to go to the outer banks in North Carolina. My small rental cottage was only steps aways from one of the quietest and peaceful beaches, I ever could have asked for. As the afternoon started to come to a close the sunset took on such glorious colors which were only highlighted even more in the waters. It was a much welcomed start to a much needed break.
